Stress and mental wellbeing resources for Higher Education Institutions

From the Higher Education Safety and Health (HESH) Forum
Stress and mental wellbeing resources for HEIs

Foreword

The stress and mental wellbeing resources pack is an extensive list which has been brought together and includes links to web pages and documents about work-related stress, stress management and mental health from a range of organisations including the HSE, Acas, the CIPD and trades unions.

The pack has been developed jointly by UCEA and the trade unions through the Higher Education Safety and Health (HESH) Forum. The Higher Education (HE) Sector-level Health, Safety and Wellbeing strategy 2016-2020 identified assisting higher education institutions (HEIs) specifically in the management of mental health and stress through, for example, reviewing available guidance, and sharing good practice and resources from within and outside the sector as one of its objectives. The pack seeks to support this objective by signposting in one place, for the use of people with specific responsibilities in individual HEIs, resources and good practice that they can utilise. This pack is not intended to be a definitive or exhaustive list of resources nor is it intended as prescriptive in its guidance. Rather it is a tool to support HEIs in the management of stress and mental health issues which should support and engender a proactive approach. The pack is a ‘living document’ which will be updated regularly and we will be pleased to receive recommendations as to further resources that might be included.

The management of stress in the workplace is a responsibility that is not new but has continued to grow in prominence over recent years and one that the HE sector employers have been addressing in an appropriately serious and systematic manner. Mental health is also being recognised as a growing issue with data from MIND\(^1\), the mental health charity, telling us that approximately one in four people in the UK will be likely to experience a mental health problem each year. Work-related stress and common mental health problems can often go together. Employers have a legal duty of care to employees to assess the risk to employees’ health and safety from work-related stress by undertaking suitable and sufficient risk assessments and then acting on these to seek to prevent injury through proactive management. HEIs have well-established health and safety procedures and are aware of their responsibilities for risk assessments. Employees also have a duty to take care of their own health, safety and wellbeing and to cooperate with employers, informing the employer of issues and where appropriate making use of employer support, in order to help everyone to meet their legal requirements. In exercising their statutory functions, trade union health and safety representatives have a key role to play in representing the views of staff groups, participating in employers’ health and safety consultation structures and promoting opportunities for joint working and collaboration.

Approaches to workload management and stress auditing are matters for individual institutions and there has been a great deal of activity in this area under way in institutions, much of it being taken forward in discussion with trade unions. The stress resource pack is aimed at helping the people in institutions who have particular responsibilities or roles arrive at their own solutions, geared to their institution’s particular circumstances and needs. Whatever your role, I very much hope you will find the pack a helpful resource for managing work related stress and supporting mental wellbeing in your institution.

---

Professor Simone Wonnacott
Vice-Chancellor, Leeds Arts University
On behalf of the Higher Education Safety and Health (HESH) Forum

This document was first published in June 2018 and updated in September 2018
Health and Safety Executive (HSE)

- Homepage of the HSE work-related stress resources
- Stress management standards
- How to tackle work-related stress: a guide for employers on making the management standards work
- Tackling work-related stress using the Management Standards approach
- Working together to reduce stress – a guide for employees
- HSE case studies on managing work-related stress
- HSE Equivalence checklist: is my risk assessment approach suitable and sufficient?
- HSE Line Manager Competency Indicator Tool
- HSE stress resources: contains links to dropdown menu of helpful sources of support

Advisory Conciliation and Arbitration Service (Acas)

- Promoting positive mental health in the workplace: this includes:
  - the Acas guide (2017)
  - three case studies
  - research paper on the management of mental health at work (2016)
- Dealing with stress in the workplace: advice and guidance from Acas
- Managing staff experiencing mental ill-health: advice and guidance from Acas. Includes resources on:
  - approaching a sensitive conversation regarding mental ill-health
  - disability discrimination
  - common adjustments for staff experiencing mental ill-health
- Managing anxiety in the workplace: advice and guidance from Acas

Chartered Institute for Personnel and Development (CIPD)

- Stress in the workplace: factsheet
- Mental health in the workplace: factsheet
- People Managers’ Guide to Mental Health: a comprehensive good practice guide for line managers.
- Line management behaviour and stress at work: it includes:
  - research suggesting that line managers play a pivotal role in workplace stress management.
  - report and case studies about stress prevention and positive manager behaviour

HE sector resources

- Universities UK Step Change framework: this supports senior teams in HEIs to adopt a whole-institution approach to improve the mental health of students and staff. It includes:
  - background to and information about the framework
  - research and information about student mental health
  - a strategic checklist for HEIs
- The positive and mindful university: a report from HEPI which considers the importance of a proactive approach to mental wellbeing. It includes:
  - best practice from the UK, USA, Mexico and Australia
  - practical recommendations for students and staff
  - ways for improving the transition between school and university
• Mental Health First Aid (MHFA) training for the higher education sector: MHFA aims to help people to spot the symptoms of mental health issues, offer initial help and guide the person to support. The training is designed to benefit students, academic and support staff alike. Resources for HE include:
  o A training framework and training options designed for a range of budgets and needs
  o A whole university framework for mental health

Trade union resources

• UNISON: Guarding against stress toolkit
• UNISON: Mental health matters campaign
• UNISON: Resilience and well-being (a guide for members)
• Worksmart: from the TUC: a website which provides a wide range of advice on employment rights including health and safety and illnesses and injuries.
• Hazards magazine: an independent magazine which provides resources and information on health and safety for trade unions.

Other resources

• Time to change: a social movement changing how we think about and act about mental health, run by charities Mind and Rethink Mental Illness.
• Business in the Community Emotional Resilience Toolkit: providing practical guidance in promoting the resilience of individuals and teams in companies as part of an integrated health and wellbeing programme.
• Workplace wellbeing charter: an accreditation standard based on best practice and the latest research to improve the health of business and organisations, run by the charity Health@Work.
• “Address Your Stress” toolkit from Mental Health First Aid: an interactive toolkit for individuals.
• Mental Health at Work Gateway from Mind: an online gateway to resources, tools. guidance and training designed to help the way mental health is approached across the UK.

Sources of information

• Mind: mental health charity
• Mind - understanding mental health: a booklet explaining what mental health problems are, what may cause them and the many types of help, support and treatment that are available.
• NHS choices: NHS website that offers practical advice, interactive videos and audio guides to help individuals to feel mentally and emotionally better.
• Remploy: Remploy provides specialist employment and skills support for disabled people and those with disabilities.
• Rethink Mental Illness: a national charity which provides support for people affected by mental illness.